Matthew 18 Conflict Transformation Workshop Registration Form

The Virgina District Discipleship and Reconciliation Committee and the On Earth Peace Assembly will be sponsoring a Matthew 18 Healthy Conflict and Communication Workshop on Saturday, February 7, 2026 at Camp Bethel. Led by Andrew Duffy (conflict transformation expert, not Pastor Andy Duffey of Antioch COB) and Ewun Benjamin. The Matthew 18 workshop is a beginning - a first step - a starting place toward understanding the conflicts in our lives and how to work through them in healthy ways. The different parts of Matthew 18 work together. Throughout the workshop, we try to see how each section helps us to understand how to live together as a "church", particularly when there's conflict or brokenness.

What to expect:

- Consider conflict in Biblical perspective, especially related to teachings from Matthew 18
- Reflect on your approach to conflict and communication
- Consider how power, reconciliation, and dignity help build healthy relationships
- Learn and practice tools for healthy communication and conflict, immediately applicable in family, church, work, or community settings

Where: Camp Bethel

When: Saturday February 7, 2026 from 9am to 5pm

Cost: $55/participant (Congregations sending 5 or more participants will receive a discounted price of $45 per participant.)

Black History Month Film & Lunch

The Peace & Justice Group invites you to join us on Sunday, February 15, 2026 following worship at 12:45 p.m., for a special Black History Month gathering. We will watch The Six Triple Eight, a film that tells the inspiring true story of the only all-Black, all-female U.S. Army battalion to serve overseas during World War II, highlighting their perseverance, service, and commitment to excellence in the face of discrimination. (Rated PG-13 | runtime varies by version)

The film includes historically accurate portrayals of discrimination that may be challenging for some viewers. Parents are encouraged to use their discretion.

Pizza will be provided as we gather to eat, watch, and reflect together. To help with planning for the lunch, please let Ellen Phillips know if you plan to attend.

Pastor's Column

One sign of a healthy decision making process is the ability to distinguish between the way things have always been done and the way things can most meaningfully be done. Sometimes these are the same thing. Our ability to maintain meaningful traditions while working toward important goals provides much of the comfort, peace, and stability we need to grow in faith and in love for Christ and the church.

The difficulty comes when our ability or interest in maintaining traditions changes. I sometimes hear people say, "I don't like change; I wish things could be the way they once were." It's easy to be sympathetic to this view. What it overlooks, though, is that change is constant. People age. Beloved church members who have served the congregation for decades die. New members join the congregation, eager to use their gifts, talents, and interests to bless us all.

Change is hard and navigating it successfully is a challenge that opens the door to conflict. And yet it is possible to both delight in new growth and struggle with new ideas at the same time. Joy and conflict make for unexpected—and contentious—traveling companions.

In times like these, an effective way forward can be to ask, "How can we do the things we want to do in a way that makes sense for where we are now?" It is a choice to honor the traditions that mean so much to so many, while utilizing the talents and ideas of the congregation we currently have. Such thinking honors the past and recognizes the present, enabling us to helpfully prepare for the future.
